

This is a detailed architectural floor plan of a large, multi-story building, identified as the University of Michigan Law School. The plan shows a complex arrangement of rooms, corridors, and service areas. A prominent feature is a large, rectangular room on the right side of the plan, which is highlighted in red. This room is likely the main lecture hall or a large seminar room. Other rooms include smaller lecture halls, offices, and study areas. The building has a central corridor system that provides access to all rooms. The plan also shows the building's relationship to the surrounding campus, with a road and other buildings visible in the background.
